B (期中 • 25-26 西安高新一中)

Emma lived in a village happily with her family. It was so hot in summer. She often slept on the roof (屋顶) of the flat-topped house with her grandmother. Grandmother always sang Emma to sleep. She also told her some stories.

One day, Dad told her that they would move to England because he had got a job there. It was a piece of good news, but Emma was a little sad because she didn't want to leave her grandmother.

As the plane landed, Emma's head was filled with new things. Emma was surprised that many things were different and tried her best to get used to the life there. Oh, but it was much colder here than it was in her hometown!

Emma thought of the warm nights when she sat next to Grandmother under the stars. Emma wrote to Grandmother, “I love and miss you, Grandmother, especially at bed time.”

Weeks passed. Emma got a parcel (包裹) from her grandmother one day. She opened it at once. Inside she found a colourful blanket and a note. It said, “My Emma, I made this for you. The blanket carries my love for you. It will always keep you warm. Love, Grandma.” Nighttime seemed to get warmer for Emma from that day on. She was thankful. So she called...

C 人与自我 劳动实践

One evening last summer, when I asked my 14-year-old son, Jack, to help with dinner, his question shocked me. “What is a colander (漏勺)?” he asked.

Nobody else could cook for the family except me! But that night, as I explained that a colander is the thing with holes in it, I knew what else I should have taught Jack. As a mother, while I cared about my son's grades and characters, I always forgot that I should also raise someone's future roommate, boyfriend, husband, or father. I just raised a boy who would always ask his mother, “What's for dinner?” So I came up with a plan: I would open a housework course for Jack. I was glad to find that he didn't say no.

For two hours, three days a week, Jack was all mine. One day, as his tomato sauce reduced on the stove, he washed and seasoned a chicken for roasting. Then he rolled out the piecrust (馅饼皮) and filled it with apples, all while listening to my explanation on the importance of preheating an oven. I knew that he would like to play basketball. He tried to stop the terrible lessons, but I refused him. At last, our housework course lasted for one year.

"I appreciate (感激) what you do as a mum," he told me one day.

Now, Jack understands the importance of doing housework, and more importantly, he realizes people learn independence and self-reliance because they have to do it.

() 42. Why was the author shocked at her son's question?

- A. Because he disagreed to help with dinner.
- B. Because he was ready to help.
- C. Because he didn't even know what a colander is.
- D. Because he was so lazy.

() 43. The author realized that she should _____ that night.

- A. care more about her son's grades
- B. build up her son's healthy characters
- C. do something for Jack's future life
- D. not make her son do so much homework

() 44. After learning to do housework, Jack _____.

- A. did all the housework for his family
- B. understood why his mum made him do that
- C. could do better in his studies
- D. always made big meals for his mum

() 45. 中考新趋势 思维导图还原 This chart shows how the story goes on. Which is the missing part?

Son's Question: What is a colander?	My Deep Thinking: Care about skills.	Our Action: Start a housework course.	?
---	--	---	---

- A. Son's Feeling: Stop the terrible lessons.
- B. Son's Plan: Make a big meal for himself.
- C. Son's Dream: Do all the housework for his family.
- D. Son's Change: Understand independence and be thankful.

(期中 • 23-24 西安曲江一中) Are chores important? There are more benefits than you can imagine. Children can not only get some skills, but they can also get a sense of satisfaction. According to a study from Harvard University, children who often do chores will have more chances to be successful.

How many hours do kids do chores at home every day?

In fact, helping at home is a universal thing. Everyone in the family should play a part in doing chores. Luckily, our country has realized the importance of labour education. People's Daily also gives us a chore chart (图表) for kids at different ages.

Kids aged 5 to 6 years old
✓ Make the bed properly. ✓ Put their own things away. ✓ Learn to group things.
Kids aged 7 to 9 years old
✓ Do the dishes. ✓ Clean their rooms. ✓ Get things ready for school.
Kids aged 12 years old and up
✓ Deep clean their room. ✓ Shop for the festivals. ✓ Make plans for the family trip.

To help children get all-round development, we can't overlook the importance of labour. Just as teenagers are often told, "Do your own work and get ready to help others." Let's start to take action now!

66. What are the benefits of doing chores for children?

They can get some skills and _____.

67. In which country do kids do housework for the longest hours?

Kids in _____ do housework for the longest hours.

68. Who can make the bed properly according to the chart?

_____ can make the bed properly.
